

Trinity College

Cambridge

20.12.45.

Dear Señor Bernacer,

I will answer your letter of Dec 12 without delay. Though I am not yet ready to answer your letter of Oct 22!

You must forgive me; on returning to academic life after 5 years in Government service, I find myself faced with terrible arrears of reading, lecture

-preparation etc, and have to put many things aside. I hope to send you an answer some time. Meanwhile, Thank you for sending me your new book, which has arrived safely. I am calling Hayak's attention to it.

I am very glad to hear you are keeping an eye on the Spanish translation of my 'Essays'. I certainly agree that No XVI would not bear translating or transmuting. I have some affection for the Reviews (No XIII), which are mostly of writers of some international standing, and fit in with the general theme of the other Essays. ~~But~~ What about keeping the first three, which are all about the Trade Cycle, and dropping the others? I will leave the final decision to you, but I think that might be rather a good compromise.

Yours sincerely

D. H. Robertson.